

- Texas burn ban prohibits outdoor fires due to dry weather and increased wildfire risk.
- Reasons for implementing burn bans include drought conditions, high fire danger, air quality concerns, and protection of property and life.
- Violating the burn ban can result in criminal charges, fines, restitution, civil liability, and jail time.